The Southern California Orthopedic Institute is one of the largest private orthopedic practices on the West Coast.

THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Orthopedic Institute is one of the largest private orthopedic practices on the West Coast. SCOI plays a leadership role throughout the world in clinical research and the education of medical professionals on orthopedic diseases and disorders.

Four SCOI physicians are named in this edition of Super Doctors[®]. Dr. Richard D. Ferkel is director of the Sports Medicine Fellowship program at SCOI. He is internationally recognized as an expert in foot and ankle arthroscopy and has written a textbook on the subject. His practice is focused on arthroscopic and reconstructive surgery as well as sports medicine. Dr. Stephen J. Snyder focuses on treatment of shoulder problems and outpatient shoulder arthroscopy. He has devoted much of his practice to the development of surgical tools and techniques for performing and teaching shoulder arthroscopy, including authoring a highly acclaimed textbook.

Dr. Todd J. Molnar specializes in physical medicine and rehabilitation, with an emphasis on sports medicine. He remains on the leading edge of sports and orthopedic research through publishing articles and lecturing. Dr. Donald A. Wiss specializes in adult and pediatric fracture management and post-traumatic bone reconstruction, including surgical and nonsurgical treatment of a wide variety of fractures. He is greatly in demand around the world on the orthopedic trauma lecture circuit and has published numerous articles, book chapters and textbooks.
